The alphabet

Twenty-eight letters, in the groups the app teaches them in: letters that share a skeleton sit together, because ا ت ث differ only in dots. Each letter shows its three shapes — at the start, in the middle and at the end of a word.

The path

Seventeen units, each built on the one before. Below, what is in each unit and the notes the app gives along the way — the grammar, in one place.

Lhruf الحروف

The Arabic alphabet, letter by letter — ا ب ت ث ج ح خ د ذ ر ز س ش ص ض ط ظ ع غ ف ق ك ل م ن ه و ي · Checkpoint

Arabic is read and written from right to left. Letters join up, so the same letter looks different at the start, in the middle and at the end of a word. ت, ب, and ث are exactly the same stroke — only the dots differ.

Six letters never join forward

ا د ذ ر ز و never join to the letter after them. That is why a word sometimes breaks apart in the middle without being two words. Every other letter sticks on both sides.

The heavy letters

ص ض ط ظ are the dark cousins of س د ت ز. You make them with your tongue flat and far back, as if you were talking with your mouth full. You can hear the difference: سيف (sword) and صيف (summer).

The most famous sound

ع is the sound Arabic is famous for: a squeeze deep in your throat. In messages Moroccans write a 3 for it, because a 3 looks like غ. ع is the rasping French r, and ق a k right at the back.

The last three

That is all twenty-eight letters. و and ي are the two that are sometimes a consonant (w, y) and sometimes a long vowel (oo, ee) — the word tells you which.

Salam! السلام

Saying hello and goodbye — Hello and goodbye · How are you? · Yes, no, okay · A fond goodbye · Checkpoint

What is Darija?

Darija is the language of the street in Morocco. It looks like Arabic, but with its own words from Amazigh, French and Spanish. Here you learn both the Arabic script and the letters Moroccans use in their messages.

Boy or girl?

Darija changes the word when you speak to a girl: kif dayr? to a boy, kif dayra? to a girl. You will meet that -a everywhere.

The numbers inside the words

In messages Moroccans write 3 for 7, ع for ح and 9 (or q) for ق. Those sounds do not exist in English. 3afak = please, 7amdullah = thank God.

Ana w nta A0 أنا وntا

Me, you, and who you are — Me and you · What is your name? · Where are you from? · Checkpoint

No “to be”

Darija has no word for “am”. “Ana ferhan” is literally “I happy” and means “I am happy”. That saves a lot of work.

L3a'ila A0 العائلة

Introducing your family — At home · Uncles and aunts · This is my... · Checkpoint

Two kinds of uncle

Your father's family (3ammi, 3ammti) and your mother's (khali, khalti) have their own words. Moroccans ask straight away: which side?

The -i of “my”

Stick -i on a word and it is yours: khoya (my brother), sahbi (my friend), smiti (my name). Stick -ek on and it is the other person's: smitek (your name).

L3dad A0 الأعداد

Counting to a hundred — One to five · Six to ten · Counting further · How old are you? · Checkpoint

Two is “jouj”

For 2 Darija uses jouj (from Arabic zawj, “pair”), not tnayn. Jouj drari = two children.

Lalwan A0 الألوان

The colours around you — The six basic colours · More colours · Checkpoint

Colours take an -a too

A red car is tomobil hemra, a red book is ktab hmer. The word adapts to the thing you are describing.

Lmakla A1 المأكلة

Food, drink and tea — On the table · Fruit and vegetables · From the fridge · Moroccan dishes · I am hungry · Checkpoint

Atay is a ritual

Mint tea is poured from high up so it foams. Three glasses is the custom — refusing is almost rude.

Friday is couscous day

After the Friday prayer almost all of Morocco eats kesksu, from one big dish in the middle of the table.

Ddar (A1) الدار

In and around the house — The rooms · Furniture · Things · Checkpoint

Lmedrasa (A1) المدرسة

In the classroom — Who is who · In your bag · I do (not) understand · Checkpoint

Saying no: ma ... sh

Put ma in front of the verb and sh behind it: fhemt (I understand) becomes ma fhemtsh (I do not understand). 3endi becomes ma 3endish.

Lhayawanat (A1) الحيوانات

Animals near and far — Around the house · On the farm · Wild · Checkpoint

Lweqt (A1) الوقت

Days, time and weather — When? · The days · Clock and calendar · The weather · Checkpoint

The week starts on Sunday

lhedd (Sunday) comes from “one”, lethnin (Monday) from “two”, tlat from “three”. The days are simply counted.

Ljism (A1) الجسم

Body and feelings — Your face · Your body · How do you feel? · Checkpoint

Kanbghik

Kanbghik means both “I love you” and “I like you”. You say it to your mother, your grandmother and your best friend.

Kanhder (A1) كنهضر

Saying what you do — Every day · More things to do · Wanting and having · Do it! · Checkpoint

The ka- of “now”

Put ka(n)- in front of a verb and it happens now or always: nakol (that I eat) becomes kanakol (I eat, I am eating).

Giving an order

An order is the bare verb: sir (go), aji (come), shuf (look). To a girl an -i is added, to several people a -u: siri, siru.

? Su'al A1 السؤال

Asking questions — The question words · Questions you really use · Checkpoint

The question word may stay at the end

Unlike English, the sentence does not move: “smitek shnu?” (your name what?) works just as well as “shnu smitek?”.

Fssouq A2 السوق

At the market — Where and with what · Haggling · Big or small · Checkpoint

Haggling is part of it

At the souq the first price is an opening bid. Kindly name about half, smile, and meet in the middle.

Fin ghadi? A2 فين غادي؟

Asking the way — Left, right, straight on · In the city · Checkpoint

Lmghrib dyalna A2 المغرب ديالنا

Country, cities and celebration — The country and its languages · Celebration and tradition · Checkpoint

Two official languages

Morocco has Arabic and Tamazight (Amazigh) as official languages. Tamazight has its own alphabet, Tifinagh: ⵜⴰⴳⴷⵓⴷⴰⵢⵜ. Darija is what people speak at home.

Every word

By topic, as in the app. The middle column is the Latin spelling Moroccans use in their own messages: 3 = ق = 9, ح = 7, ع.

About this book

This book is typeset from the app itself: every word, every letter and every note comes from the same source as the lessons. A word added to the course is in the next printing.

Hearing is half of it. Every word here is in the app too, recorded by a Moroccan voice — read here, listen there.
